Senator Hubert D. Stephens Answers Webber Wilson's Challenge to Debate

Says Inasmuch as Wilson Left His Post in Congress before Session Adjourned and Has Already Been Campaigning, that It Would Be Hardly Fair to Meet Him over Entire State—Suggests One Meeting—Wilson Went into Lower House at Same Time Stephens Entered Senate—Senator Writes as One Friend to Another.

Jackson, Miss., June 17.—Senator Hubert Stephens, who has opened headquarters on the fourth floor of the Edwards House, which will be in charge of Leon F. Hendricks, his campaign manager, has accepted the challenge of Webber Wilson for a series of joint debates.

"The people have a right to hear us discuss the issues of the day and our records. You entered the house of representatives on the same day I entered the senate, and the people will be interested to know what service each has rendered during these years," said Senator Stephens in his reply.

Mr. Hendricks is a member of the legislature from Hinds county, he served as secretary to Governor Murphree during his campaign for governor, and has had much other political experience. He is greatly pleased with the record of Senator Stephens which he has been studying, and with the reports that have come to headquarters from over the state.

The following is the reply of Senator Stephens to Congressman Wilson:

Room 412, Edwards Hotel, Jackson, Mississippi, June 16th, 1928.

Hon. T. Webber Wilson, Wilson Campaign Headquarters, Jackson, Mississippi.

Dear Webber:

I have your letter in which you suggest that we have a series of joint discussions during our campaign for the senate.

It is quite proper that the issues of the campaign be presented to the people. I am not only willing, but anxious, that this be done.

You entered the house on the same day that I became a senator. Each one has been a "hired man" of the people. In the more than five years, each has made a record. That record is contained very largely in the various publications of the government. The people will be interested to know what service each has rendered, and they should be informed on this subject.

Ours is largely an agricultural state, and the farmers, owing to weather conditions, are badly behind with their work. At the present, they are much more interested in their own affairs than they are in yours and mine. That condition will continue for some time. So, we cannot hope, for quite a while, to have crowds of any size to hear us. It will be entirely agreeable with me for some place to be selected for us to meet and discuss the issues.

Superintendent Bond Makes Two Addresses

State Department Head Tells Holcomb and Grenada Audiences that Proposed Increase in School Tax Levy Should Be Made.

Hon. W. F. Bond, state superintendent of public education, came up to Grenada Friday afternoon of last week and went out to Holcomb that night to make an address in behalf of the proposed increase in the tax levy outside of the city of Grenada of 3 1/2 mills for school purposes. The next morning at 11 o'clock, he spoke to an audience at the court house in Grenada on the same subject.

Mr. Bond reviewed briefly some of the school legislation of the last few years and spoke at length on the efforts of the department of education to get an eight months' school term and of the law passed at the recent session of the legislature looking to that end. He stated that an eight months' term was not to be had by all the counties, unless there was supplemental tax levy in the counties. He said that the legislative act provided that the extra appropriation should go into what is termed the "floating fund" which is allotted by the state board of education to those counties which the board deems need it most and which undertake to help themselves. He sought to dissipate the idea that Grenada County, for instance, would have funds for an eight months' term unless it increased its tax levy as is being urged by the proposition now before the voters of the county outside of the town of Grenada.

Mr. Bond succeeded Prof. W. H. Smith in 1916 as state superintendent of education and has had a most enviable success. The educators of the state have been behind him perhaps as they have lent their aid and cooperation to no other head of the department of education since Mississippi became a state. He is an untiring worker. He knows the necessary arts so essential to an official in grappling with the problems of the state in getting their continued support and cooperation.

It is manifest that there is a deal of well defined opposition to the plan Mr. Bond and County Supt. Atkinson are urging. It is being urged that the country districts are already taxed all that property owners can bear, and it sues. In that way each candidate in the presence of the other can discuss his own record, as well as that of his opponent; and the issues between us can be clearly defined.

The people are reading more than in former days. We can arrange to have our speeches carried in the newspapers. In that way, nearly every voter can be informed as to the issues. It may be, too, that we shall meet from time to time as the campaign progresses. You have made many speeches over the state during the past few years; I have made but few. You were fortunate enough to be able to leave Washington some weeks before congress adjourned and to make speeches and organize your campaign headquarters. I could not do this as there were many matters of importance there that kept me at my post of duty. For these reasons, I prefer, in the main, to select my own places to speak, and I am not ready at this time to fix dates for myself.

You suggest that we appoint representatives to confer on the subject. There is no need for this. You and I are personal friends. If you are willing to have the meeting that I suggested, you and I can meet and agree upon the time, place and terms of the joint meeting.

It is legitimate, of course, to discuss the official record of a candidate. It is my purpose to confine myself solely to such legitimate discussion. I trust that the campaign may be a pleasant and friendly one.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am,

Your friend,
(Signed) HUBERT D. STEPHENS

NEW RAILROAD COMMISSIONER HERE

Hon. W. R. Scott, recently appointed railroad commissioner to succeed Hon. W. S. Lagrone, deceased, was in Grenada this week on official business. Mr. Scott came to make a survey and inspection of the depot at Dubard, which the railroad company is seeking authority to close upon the grounds that it is losing the company money. The proposition has been before the commission for more than a year. It seems, however, that when the land was deeded the railroad for right of way and depot, there was a reservation in the instrument that precludes closing the depot without the consent of adjacent property owners. It is understood that negotiations are under way whereby an adjustment may be made that will be satisfactory to all concerned and that will keep the depot open.

Mr. Scott was railroad commissioner some 16 years ago and was best known then as "two cent Scott." He made a fine impression on those with whom he came in contact while here and The Sentinel believes that he is going to make a useful member of the commission.

LICKFOLD WINS HAM

Dropping only two targets out of fifty, Fred Lickfold took away the honors at the weekly shoot of the Grenada Gun Club last Thursday afternoon. For his excellent shooting, he was given the fine ham awarded by the club. Complete scores Thursday follow:

UNION SERVICES SUNDAY AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Sentinel has been requested to announce that the union services next Sunday evening, June 24th, at 8 o'clock, will be held at the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. J. H. Holder, pastor of the Methodist church, is to do the preaching.

The choirs of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Episcopal churches will unite in presenting a special program of music.

appears that many believe that there is some sort of juggling otherwise there would be no question about the county's getting the necessary money to carry the schools eight months. The proposition has its proponents but they do not appear to be making as much noise as some against it. Many hold that the whole matter rests with the educational authorities and that it is of paramount importance to the school children of the county to get an eight months' term. No doubt as the day of election draws nearer, the interest will increase and perhaps more and more fervor will be shown.

TALKS ON EGYPT

Rev. R. L. McLeod Tells Rotarians of Ancient Country.

At its meeting Tuesday, June 19, Grenada Rotarians enjoyed a treat when they heard Rotarian Rev. R. L. McLeod give an interesting and vivid description of Egypt, one of the oldest countries in the world, which he visited during his tour of the holy lands in 1924. Mr. McLeod some months ago told of some of his experiences on his tour and his first account was no less entertaining than the second.

He told his hearers of the pyramids and the sphinx and related what marvelous ingenuity the ancient Egyptians exhibited in their construction. He gave a description of his visit to the tombs of the Pharaohs and devoted much of this description to that of King Tut. He also mentioned the tomb of Ramses II, the Pharaoh of the oppression, and told of seeing his mummy in Cairo. The minister said that Ramses II must undoubtedly have been a great egotist and a great self-advertiser since he had erased the names of other kings from their tombs and had substituted his in their stead. Rotarians secured much information from Mr. McLeod's talk, especially about the crops, the customs and the life of the inhabitants of this ancient country.

Rotarian Dr. C. G. Spears, of Altus, Okla. was a guest at the luncheon as were Messrs. L. B. Jones, of Jackson, and C. H. Ingram, of Grenada.

LEFLORE PYTHIANS HELP LOCAL LODGE

Crack Team from Delta City Lodge Aids Grenada Pythians in Initiation of Candidates at Wednesday Session—Visitors Are Given Most Cordial Welcome.

The Knights of Pythias of Grenada were enlivened Wednesday night by a large number of Greenwood visitors who came over to assist in the induction of several new members, and as some one put it, "to put new life into the Grenada lodge." After the work in the lodge room had been concluded, Rose Cafe was sought where a delightful banquet had been prepared. The local lodge, Ivanhoe No. 8, is presided over by Dr. Wm. P. Ferguson, long a member of the fraternity and one of its most devoted and faithful adherents. The third rank team of the Greenwood lodge 46, who constituted the visitors, is said to be one of the brightest and best in the state. Through the courtesy of the Masonic fraternity, the meeting Wednesday night was held in the spacious room of the new Masonic temple. The visitors could not have had a more cordial reception and they could not have visited a lodge where their presence would have been more interesting or have been more generously appreciated.

Those making up the visitors from the neighboring city of Greenwood were: Sam E. Colmery, Wade H. Stokes, past grand chancellor of Mississippi, Robert Herman, Norman Smith, Thos. E. Martin, Chas. E. Vallance, G. A. Teague, Donald W. Eubanks, Roy B. Evans, now chancellor commander, Jno. E. Boyd, Louis E. Prophet, Lex H. Curtis, Anderson Gionis, Robt. B. Williams, D. M. Edwards, W. K. Clements, Albert J. Brewerton, C. E. Taylor, Arthur Utroska, E. B. Spaeth and R. W. Campbell. J. Waring Taylor, of Grenada, and R. W. Campbell were the candidates.

Between Grenada and Greenwood there appears to be a stronger tie of friendship than between almost any other towns. Primarily possibly the reason for this is that Grenada furnished in the years ago some of Greenwood's most substantial business factors and that today Grenada has a number of her sons and daughters who are a part of the business life of that growing city. The entire town expresses gratification that these good men came over and extends them and all others of Greenwood a most cordial invitation to come oftener and on any occasion.

BLAZE AT KIMZEY HOME

Fire, originating from the kitchen flue, did less than $50 damage to the roof of the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Kimzey, on Commerce Street, shortly after noon Monday. Prompt and effective work on the part of the fire department probably saved the house from complete destruction. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

Your fire losses are paid promptly when your insurance is placed with Hoffa & Moody.

Hen Stealers, Inc. Following the example of men in many another business, chicken thieves of Leland decided they could increase profits by combination. Knowing nothing of corporations, they organized a gang. Caught, the gang last week held its discussions behind bars.

TAXPAYERS WRITE AGAINST TAX LEVY

Say County Has Already Received in 1928 from State Nearly Seventeen Thousand Dollars for Schools—Consideration of County Present Debt.

Editor Sentinel:

You have always opened columns of your valuable paper to give the people an opportunity to discuss all the issues affecting the welfare of the people of Grenada county. We now come to for space in your paper to discuss briefly the election to be held June 30th, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors the question of whether or not we shall levy a county-wide school tax of 3 1/2 mills which added to the 1 1/2 mills that we are already paying will make a total levy of 5 mills. We noticed the articles in your paper last week from B. W. Smith, supervisor of beat 4, and other good citizens of Grenada county in which their views are expressed freely on voting this additional tax and we admire their courage and their opinion should receive some consideration.

A great deal has been said about how much the state is doing for the public schools and how little the counties are doing, overlooking the fact that the counties make the state and supply the state with most of the school funds.

In the spring of 1928 Grenada county received from the state $10,654.15 from the regular distribution and $6,000.00 from the special or equalizing fund, making a total of $16,654.15 from both funds for the year. Yet we are told that if we fail to make a county-wide levy of five mills we would receive very little if anything from the equalizing fund, yet we have already received $6,000.00 from this fund for the year of 1928. The very object of this special or equalizing fund is to give the children in each county as near as possible the same school term. The legislature in its wisdom thought the strong and wealthy counties should help the poorer counties of the state with a large white population.

We have received from the state this year the sum of $16,654.15 to which will be added all the poll tax collected in the county, the 1 1/2 mills that we are already paying and the special levy in the different consolidated districts of the county, some as high as 22 1/2 mills which will make a right good fund for Grenada county.

Yet we are told that Grenada county is doing nothing for her children.

We poor farmers feel that we are doing all that we are able to do for our children, yet we are told to come on with another levy of 3 1/2 mills and make it county-wide, consolidated schools and on all the territory in Grenada county outside the city of Grenada. They are always telling about the school funds that are needed but seldom tell us about the school funds received and spent on public schools. We are not debating the question of who loves the children most, but the question of levying another 3 1/2 mills at this time for the public schools. The consolidated schools are being asked to vote this 3 1/2 mills and are told that it will be taken off at the proper time. But remember that tax is seldom reduced and never taken off. For example, the tax in consolidated districts next year than you did last year. Taxes are always going up and never down.

We are not taking the position we do in opposition to our worthy County Superintendent of Public Education, Prof. Lafayette Atkinson. He is doing a splendid work, and we feel that he is but undertaking to do what almost any other official in his place would. Unfortunately our educators who plan these big things are not always careful business men and are too often more concerned about "putting over" a campaign than they are about the burdens that fall upon the people as a result of the "big" things in education. Most campaigns are planned outside of the counties where they are put on. We feel that it would be unwise to levy an additional school tax at this time for the following reasons:

1. We already have a heavy bonded indebtedness as heavy as the people are able to carry.
  2. We feel that some of the white

SELL ONLY 8 LOTS

The auction sale of lots in Sun Garden Terrace subdivision last Thursday afternoon was stopped by W. E. Hoffa, owner, after eight lots were sold. The eight lots brought an average of $425 each and Mr. Hoffa felt that such a sacrifice should not be made. Grenada real estate usually brings higher prices than that and he felt that it would be better to wait until a more auspicious time.

The crowd was disappointing. Only a few people were there but when one considers the weather and the fact that a downpour was threatening every second, it is easily understandable why no more were on hand.

T. J. Little was awarded $100 of the $200 in gold given away. Mrs. Jack Sanderson was given $50 and $50 went to Will Beckum.

Passes Away Sunday, June 17th

BRUCE DAVENPORT NEWSOM.

Bruce Newsom Is No More

Judge Bruce D. Newsom died at his home in Grenada Sunday afternoon, June 17th, at 5 o'clock after an illness of five months' duration. Funeral services were conducted from the family residence at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon by Rev. J. H. Holder, pastor of the Methodist church. The remains were laid to rest in Woodlawn Memorial Park, of which the deceased was part owner and the building of which was one of his long cherished dreams.

Bruce Davenport Newsom was born June 25, 1893, in Independence, Tate county, the son of the late Dr. T. C. and Mrs. L. J. Newsom. He received his literary education at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and was graduated in law from the University of Mississippi at Oxford in 1917. Shortly after receiving his law degree he located in Grenada, where he was fact that he was strongly advised by numerous friends against coming here since it was thought that there were sufficient lawyers here already to more than take care of whatever legal services were required by the citizens of the county. Judge Newsom had been here but a short while when his became one of the most lucrative practices in this section. He speedily earned for himself the reputation of attending to business and that promptly and well. His was a well-trained mind and he was quick to give a decision. He handled his clients' affairs as if they were his own and threw himself earnestly into the disposition of every matter entrusted to him. Those who ever had any business with him knew that he would take no steps nor give them any advice that he did not conscientiously feel was for their best interest, therefore they had absolute confidence in him. He could prepare a legal paper that would stand the test of the courts, as had frequently been proved.

Bruce Newsom did not confine himself solely to the practice of his profession but his business activities covered a wide field. He owned one of the best plantations in the delta, near Sledge, and his success as a planter was equally as signal as his achievements in law. He was regarded as being an exceptionally good farmer and he kept constantly in touch with various details of the management and operation of his farm. He was the owner of considerable real estate in and near Grenada and this, as well as the management of the Woodlawn Memorial Park, the cemetery which was the child of his brain, required a considerable portion of his time. He spent few idle hours and seldom did he leave his office except on business.

His appointment in December, 1926, as judge of the fifth judicial district, succeeding Judge Thomas L. Lamb, deceased, was extremely surprising to many on account of his youth. But he presided over the various sessions of court during his term with that poise, that wisdom and that judicial discretion rarely found except in the seasoned jurist. At the time of his appointment he was only 33 years of age.

Bruce Newsom was originally a member of the Christian church but when he located in Grenada he found that there was no church of his faith in the town and he united with the Methodist denomination.

He subscribed liberally to its various funds and he endeavored to so order his life that it would be in keeping with the teachings of the Master. He was charitably inclined in many ways and, without ostentation or show, he was always performing some Christlike deed. The writer has time after time learned of some act of charity or some kindly performance on the part of the deceased, which knowledge came from the beneficiary of his action. From the recipient and from the recipient only, could this have been learned for Bruce would never have mentioned it.

He had been for years a member of the Masonic lodge and he was a Shriner. He belonged also to the Kappa Alpha college fraternity. Bruce Newsom was no disssembler. He was outspoken and plain-spoken. He was the same all the time. If he esteemed one, that one probably knew it. If he failed to approve of one, he was ready to freely and if he found he was in error, he was quick to admit it.

Perhaps his most outstanding trait was his loyalty. He would go to any length to serve a friend and he often at a great sacrifice to himself would accommodate those he esteemed. He was staunch in his allegiance and would never waver in his defense of a friend when the occasion demanded.

He was a tender and devoted husband and an affectionate and loving father. His home was his first consideration and he saw that everything for the comfort and welfare of his wife and two little daughters was provided. For himself he gave little thought to material things but in his family every thought was centered.

Early during his illness before it was known that his condition was serious he expressed a determination to decline to handle in the future any cases for those charged with violations of the liquor laws, saying that he did not care to have that kind of business any more. He also voiced his desire to take a greater interest in the activities of the church.

Judge Newsom was stricken with flu on Jan. 19th of this year and was apparently well on the way to recovery when his heart was affected. A visit to a famous specialist in New Orleans confirmed the diagnosis of his family physician and he returned home to await the inevitable end. On May 6th, he was stricken with paralysis, affecting one side of his body from head to feet and depriving him of the power of speech. Before his death he had practically overcome the paralytic stroke and had partially regained his speech. Friday afternoon before his death he began sinking and his condition grew steadily worse until the end came peacefully late Sunday afternoon, Jan. 19, 1920, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Etta Cavett, of Jackson, Miss., a member of one of the most prominent families of that city. To this union, two children, both daughters, Mary Jane and Nancy, were born, and both of whom survive. Besides his wife and children, he is survived also by his mother and two brothers, Dr. T. C. Newsom, Belmore, Long Island, N. Y., and N. W. Newsom, of Grenada. All of these except Dr. Newsom were at his bedside when he passed away.

To the bereft loved ones The Sentinel extends its deepest condolence and it grieves with the wife, children, mother and brothers in that it has lost a sincere and loyal friend.

DRY AGENT, CITIZEN, ENGAGE IN FISTICUFF

Sheriff Nason Witnesses Encounter on Highway Tuesday between H. S. Furr, Prohibition Officer, and Virgil Pace, Driver of Grenada Coca-Cola Truck.

H. S. Furr, federal prohibition officer, and Virgil Pace, truck driver for the Grenada Coca-Cola Bottling Co., engaged in a physical encounter between 3 and 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the Calhoun City highway about 10 miles east of Grenada. Fred S. Nason, sheriff of Grenada county, who witnessed the difficulty from the seat of Furr's automobile, declared that the bout resulted in a draw. He lays the blame for the fight equally on the two participants.

According to accounts of the affair told a Sentinel representative by Sheriff Nason and Pace, the battle followed an argument arising when Furr's car nearly crashed into Pace's truck which had stopped in the road to offer assistance to the driver of another truck stopped by trouble at the roadside. It seems that Furr and Nason were returning to Grenada from the section around Tomnolen, in Webster county, where prohibition agents and county officers staged raids Tuesday morning on moonshine stills. In one of the raids an alleged moonshiner, Lacey Gibson, was killed. The Coca-Cola truck, driven by Pace's younger brother, Francis, was headed also toward Grenada and was in front of Furr's car. When the truck reached the side of the truck in trouble, the younger Pace stopped and proffered assistance. The car driven by the federal officer was close behind and to keep from striking the truck, he had to apply his brakes heavily. According to Sheriff Nason, it was with difficulty that the car was restrained from going off the embankment.

When Furr cranked up and was passing Pace, he is said to have leaned out and made some sharp remark about the road being blocked. Pace made an equally sharp retort about Furr's brakes and Furr countered with the remark that he had "brakes enough to whip" Pace. Pace invited him to try it and both left their seats and met in the road.

Pace says Furr made a pass at him and that the officer placed his hand on his pistol which was holstered at his hip. Pace states further—

Stephens Would Pay Flood Land Owners

Mississippi Senator One of Sponsors of Amendment to Compensate Riparian Land Owners for Property Taken by Government.

Washington, June 18.—An amendment to the Mississippi River Flood Control Bill sponsored by Representative Garrett, Tennessee, and Senator Stephens, Mississippi, will serve to compensate riparian land owners in Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee for property taken by the Government in carrying out the river flood control program.

The amendment provides that, if in carrying out the purposes of the act it would be found that upon any stretch of the banks of the river it would be impracticable to construct works for protection of adjacent lands and that such adjacent lands would be subjected to damage by the execution of the general plan, it would be the duty of the board to cause to be acquired on behalf of the government either the absolute ownership of the lands so subjected to overflow, or floodage rights over such lands.

The claim for compensation was not pressed by the two members of Congress as representing constituents as possible litigants in the matter, but solely on the ground of fairness, asking only for compensation to the extent of the value of the property taken.

The Mississippi Senator called personally on President Coolidge and also took the idea to Attorney General Sargent, convincing them that the amendment was just and fair to riparian land owners on the east bank of the river in the three states. The President approved the purchase of lands by the Government only where it was considered absolutely necessary for protection purposes and the amendment with his approval, after it was explained, as one of the courses to pursue in lending Federal aid to the Mississippi valley.

The amendment was not a part of the Jones Bill as it passed the Senate, but was included in the measure in the House. Through the efforts of Senator Stephens, the conferees on the part of the Senate were convinced of the fairness to citizens of the lower valley in the provision and was accepted in the upper House when the conference report came up for discussion.

bedside when he passed away. To the bereft loved ones The Sentinel extends its deepest condolence and it grieves with the wife, children, mother and brothers in that it has lost a sincere and loyal friend.

A QUAKER NOMINATED FOR PRESIDENT

If Hoover is elected, he will be the first Quaker to ever sit in the White House as the head of the Nation.

The Episcopal church leads with the number of Presidents furnished. This is accounted for to some extent for the reason that in the early days of the colonies, the Episcopal church was the established church, and consequently the leading men of that period were nearly all reared as members of the Church of England. Presidents who were Episcopalians were: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, W. H. Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Pierce and Arthur. Those who were Presbyterians were: Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Lincoln, Cleveland, Benj. Harrison and Wilson. Those who were Methodists were: Johnson, Grant, Hayes, and McKinley. Harding was the only Baptist. The Unitarians were: John and John Quincy Adams, Fillmore and Taft. Garfield was a Disciple. Roosevelt a Reformed Dutch and Coolidge is a Congregationalist.

There are about 120,000 Quakers in this country and 20,000 in England.

The Quakers were called the "Society of Friends" in England and were founded by George Fox in 1641. They gained in numbers despite much hostility and soon spread through Scotland and Wales. The first Quaker mission came to America in 1656 and was headed by Ann Austin and Mary Fisher. They were most cruelly treated by the Massachusetts colony. They were beaten and imprisoned and finally made to go back to England. Four of them, three men and one woman, were put to death on the commons of Boston. But they persisted and William Penn finally established a permanent colony in what is now Pennsylvania which lasted 70 years.

The Quakers hence know something of persecution and of religious intolerance. They were tolerant of all religions and are today. They are known for the purity of their lives and the consistency with which they keep their faith. The more orthodox Quakers hold views that sometimes call for special consideration. They refuse to subscribe to an oath but will make an affirmation. They oppose war but will take a part in the defense of their country and unless forced into the ranks, they prefer other posts, regardless of the dangers, than ones that involve the killing of their fellowman. They believe that "the Holy Spirit or the indwelling of Christ maketh wise unto salvation and illumines the mind with true and spiritual knowledge of the things of God".

It now appears that the question of religion and one's church affiliations are going to be made prominent in this campaign. Out of it may come an awakening that will stir men's souls and cause them to turn away from the flesh pots of Egypt which are now playing such havoc in destroying old standards of morals and in undermining much that is regarded best in the life of the land.

Yes, God may even use the politics of a presidential campaign to call America to the mountains of home life and public duty.

IF THE DEMOCRATS WILL

If the Democrats, who are to assemble at Houston next week, will nominate Al Smith without a struggle and adopt a platform arraigning the beneficiaries of the protective tariff, adopt a declaration in regard to the farmers that shows a clear understanding of their troubles and that rings with a sincere desire to do for them what needs to be done, make an unequivocal announcement for standing by the Constitution and the flag, and a sane declaration that will make possible a common sense, though slight, modification of the Volstead Act without the violation of a party pledge, and call to the bar of justice those who prostitute public office for pelf or private gain, they will have a 50-50 chance to win.

There is nobody except those who move in the underworld, or who are lost to every sense of honor and decency who would have the saloon back. Nevertheless the man who believes with all his soul in the efficacy and the power of the Christian religion and who believes in the highest standards of morals and virtue, is bound to realize that whiskey, a large per cent of which is only fit for the pig in his sty or the skunk in his den, is being drunk all over the land.

It must be conceded, too, that there are many of the best citizens of the land who honestly believe that the Volstead Act and its administration have had much to do with the development of the moral situation of the country which today sees 285,000 young men in the prisons of the land. We think they are wrong, yet we feel that due consideration, under the circumstances, should be given their viewpoint.

If—not that we use the word "if"—there can be any way devised whereby the federal government can make it possible for the decent citizen to get at stated intervals a very limited amount of pure whiskey, our judgment is that that would be far better than the situation is today.

Let it not be forgotten that Woodrow Wilson vetoed the Volstead Act. And it cannot be overlooked that we are dealing with a condition and not a theory. It is not a theory of statecraft, of church, theology or piety, but a situation born of conditions that have been handed down to us and one that we cannot dodge or hide from if we would, and we should not want to do this if we could.

The country is groping in the dark to some extent, it is beating about the bush on prohibition enforcement, but we seriously doubt that it is getting anywhere. If the representatives of the National Democracy who are to assemble at Houston will show sufficient sagacity to take some step that will lead to the adoption of some plan whereby the situation can be improved, true temperance may be promoted and lawlessness may be consigned to crawl, as the Creator said the snake should ever travel, it will have rendered a doubly patriotic service. But let it not be thought that what is done is because of the appetites or thirsts of men rather than for the protection of youth and the enthronement of official and public virtue. No national contest can be won on a thirst for strong drink.

HERBERT HOOVER—THE REPUBLICAN NOMINEE

Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee for President, embodies much that is highest and best in the life of the United States. First of all it will be universally conceded that he is a clean, honest and upright man and that he is worthy of every confidence.

His telegram to the Kansas City convention, in response to one notifying him of his nomination, not only deals with matters of state, but there is that clarion call for a realization of the fact that with problems of state must go a spiritual understanding and purity in life if what is thought to be settled is to stay settled.

He is another one of those men born in poverty and left fatherless at a tender age who has made his way to the top. His father was a blacksmith. He was sent to Oregon from Iowa to make his home with an uncle when only ten years of age. There he did all sorts of menial labor. He worked but, in the quiet hours of his daily labors, there was born in him a yearning to make his way in the world, and he has. His beginning and what he has done is but another one of the many examples in the life of America that should be an inspiration to every boy.

Woodrow Wilson discovered Hoover. He underwrote him, and therefore the Democratic party is estopped from assailing him except insofar as it may differ with him on matters of vital public policy. He is a Quaker in religion, and if he should be elected, he will be the first Quaker to ever occupy the White House. Al Smith, it seems certain, is to be his Democratic opponent. If he is, and if he should be elected, he will be the first Catholic to ever occupy the White House.

As the campaign progresses, it may be expected that the life and the personal character of the candidates will be lost sight of in the zeal of party discussions and in the clamor of the fellow who never does his own thinking.

His running mate, Chas. Curtis, of Kansas, comes of an Indian tribe, the Kaws. Curtis, too, is a clean man, but is more of a politician than Hoover. If Curtis should be elected Vice President, he will be the first man of much Indian blood to sit in the place second only to the presidency, the highest office in the world.

Unless the Democrats commit political suicide, Al Smith will be their nominee next week at Houston. He, too, comes of an humble home. He did not get the opportunity of a college education that came to Hoover, nevertheless he has shown himself to be a great thinker and a student and lover of men.

With Herbert and Al, regardless of the campaign hurrahs and the political bonfires, the sober-minded, thinking people of the land may feel assured that the destinies of the country will be safe in the hands of either of them. There will be no lowering of the flag or deviation from the paths already marked by the great leaders who have gone on before by either Al or Herbert.

HERD IMPROVEMENT

The best and surest way to increase the production of a dairy herd is for the owner to join a herd improvement association. The value of herd testing is rapidly gaining favor among breeders of both grade and pure-bred cattle. It is our belief, based upon years of observation and experience, that no one thing will pay better than keeping individual records of each cow in a herd.

Official and semi-official testing have their place, for there are advantages in knowing the full capacity of a cow. These tests are better suited for a few outstanding animals in a herd than they are for all the herd.

It is very important that there be a clear understanding of the difference between the herd improvement test and the official and semi-official tests. The herd test is a long-time program and locates low producing cows. It aims to eliminate poor producing cows and to permit the perpetuation of the best dairy talent in the herd. Instead of being directed to determine the full capacities of the few outstanding animals made under propitious conditions, the herd test determines the average production of the herd. One of the ways to increase the average production of herds is to eliminate low producers.

Denmark has increased its herd average through cow testing associations until its cows averaged 8,700 lbs. milk in 1927, and the aim is to produce cows whose milk will average 4 per cent fat.

It is rather unfortunate for the advancement of herd improvement associations among pure-breds that there is a wrong understanding of the purpose of this work. Men who have not seen fit to favor herd testing, hold that the records made by weighing each cow's milk one day a month are not sufficiently accurate. In the tabulation of many records it has been revealed that through careful work an error not to exceed 5 per cent may be expected. This is not sufficient to justify objection especially since the herd improvement test is to eliminate primarily low producers.—Hoard's Dairyman.

About $16,000,000 a year is expected to be saved by the postal rate revision bill. Parcels originating on rural routes are exempt from the two cent service charge, a distinct benefit to farmers who use the mails for marketing much of their produce.

LIFE AS I SEE IT

(By T. E. Winborn, Jr.)

Home—

Love—

Death—

"There are two heavens, both made of love. One divine. The other, far on this side of the stars, by men, called Home."

And, after all's said and done, there is no sweeter spot this side Heaven's stary dome than home. Wherever it may be, if it is only a one-room shanty, or a 20-room mansion, if it's home, then there is something about it that forever entwines it in your heartstrings. And wherever you may roam, no matter how far from it, or no matter into what other homes you may go, you will never forget that little spot where you were born and where you romped away go-lucky childhood. There's no place on earth that will ever have half the attraction for you that home has, no place that will ever pull you back to it like home will, no place where you will ever be quite as supremely content as you were when you played around your mother's knee, at home.

And when you've grown old and have a home of your own, still, in memory's treasure-chest, there are longings and carings for that other home of the past that can never be again, but that will ever be in your heart 'til the world grows old, and you join your loved ones in that home beyond the stary skies.

Love, after all, is the supreme motive power of the world. No worthy undertaking is ever carried through, no aspiring ambition is ever brought to reality, or no worthwhile dream made an actual fact, unless love was behind it, unless an all powerful love was the center about which everything else moved.

And yet, there are some who deny that there's anything to love. I wonder if it's worth while to fight for the one you love and have her kiss your wounds away. I wonder if it's worth while to mend and sew and toil for the man you love and have him to take you in his arms and tell you he loves you better than all the world.

I wonder if that emotion is worth while that can make a paradise out of a shack where two hearts beat as one. That can make a heaven out of the most sordid of surroundings where there are two whose idea of happiness is each other.

No, there may be nothing to love, but I, for one, will stake my last red cent on any undertaking where love is behind it, or any effort that a man may make, if love urges him on. Because, while he may fail, yet, he will make a glorious fight while he lasts.

Every day of our lives we are brought face to face with that grim and relentless reaper that time keeps forever busy, Death. He is a grim spectre, peering uncanonily out of every mirror that reflects the graying hair, the deepening wrinkle, the dimming flash of eye, that echoes the muffled drum beat of the aging heart, tottering toward the sable curtains of the night of life. All of us face him differently. Some have a great fear and dread of that monster and search the world over for some scientific formulae by which he may be put off, yet, just a little while. Others embrace him cheerfully as a quick antidote to all their earthly cares and sorrows and rush headlong into his arms. But the most of us treat him indifferently and forget that there is such a thing until he snatches a loved one away from our midst to leave us in dismayed surprise. And, it is best that we should face the inevitable, indifferently, and yet live so that when he comes to us he will not blot out a smear but rather cut off a noble life lived for God and humanity. And if we live nobly, then, whenever and wherever he comes, we can embrace him as "A man who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams" and we can go into immortality singing that little phrase, "Oh Death, where is thy sting, oh grave, where is thy victory?"

7-YEAR OLD JERSEY HAS HAD EIGHT CALVES

Weir, Miss., June 16.—A 7-year old Jersey cow is the mother of eight calves, six females and two males. Her first calf was dropped when she was three years old. She had twins at four, a calf at five, and twins at both six and seven years. The cow is Owl's Dove and she produced over six gallons of milk daily as a five-year old. Her last set of twins are heifers.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for June 24

Review—JESUS THE SAVIOR

GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaches How to Listen.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Listen.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus our Lord and Savior.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Son of God With Power.

For senior and adult classes a good method of review will be to study the principal facts and give the leading teaching of each lesson. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for April 1.

Before going to the cross Jesus endeavored to make clear to the disciples the reality of His divine personality and the meaning of His suffering and resurrection. Correct knowledge of Christ's person and work is essential to give poise to the disciples in the tragic hours of life.

Lesson for April 8.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ was announced by an angel and He was afterward seen by many witnesses. Conviction concerning Christ's resurrection is absolutely necessary to effectively witness for Him.

Lesson for April 15.

In order to revive the drooping spirits of the disciples Jesus was transfigured before them. Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about His approaching death at Jerusalem, the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. In this transfiguration is given a foregleam of the coming kingdom.

Lesson for April 22.

Jesus as a son was faithful to His parents. He had a high regard for the true home. In this lesson He sets forth the truth concerning marriage which is the foundation of the home. Those who are actuated by His spirit will recognize marriage as the ideal law of life.

Lesson for April 29.

Jesus' answer to the question of the rich young ruler concerning what he should do in order to inherit eternal life shows that the one thing absolutely necessary is supreme love to God and that we should be willing to part with everything for His sake.

Lesson for May 6.

While Jesus was resting in the shadow of the cross, the disciples were disputing as to who should be greatest. The leading lesson is that true greatness is expressed in willingness to give oneself in service to others.

Lesson for May 13.

Jesus entered Jerusalem and officially presented himself to the Jewish nation according to prophecy. Jesus exercised his kingly authority in cursing the fig tree and driving out the money changers from the temple.

Lesson for May 20.

Under the parable of the husbandmen who betrayed their trust, Jesus showed the Jews to be guilty of persecuting the prophets and of murdering the Son of God. Man's whole duty is summed up in one word—supreme and undivided love of God.

Lesson for May 27.

Jesus is coming in glory and will enter into judgment with those who have been unfaithful. It is incumbent upon all to watch so as to be ready when He comes.

Lesson for June 3.

Though Jesus was the very Son of God, possessing all power, He was at the same time a real man and craved human sympathy; therefore He took with Him His disciples to the garden of Gethsemane.

Lesson for June 10.

Because Jesus took the place of the sinner, He was despised and rejected of men. The treatment of Jesus reveals the awful wickedness of the human heart. They chose Barabbas instead of Christ.

Lesson for June 17.

On the cross Jesus made the supreme sacrifice for the sins of the world. When the price of redemption was fully paid Jesus dismissed His spirit, thus showing that He had all power.

NASH presents a New and Finer Motor Car

New Twin Ignition Motor New Salon Bodies

"The three new Nash Series, which are being introduced everywhere today, achieve the ambition of my manufacturing career.

"They represent an entirely new type of motor car, priced moderately, but offering you all the beauty and quality and performance heretofore exclusive to very expensive automobiles.

"To create such a car we had to develop an entirely new type of design and invest over $2,500,000 in dies and machinery alone.

"Both the Salon bodies and the high compression motors which power these new models exemplify the most radically modern advancement in body craftsmanship and engineering.

"Naturally space precludes the full listing of all features but I do want to draw your attention to a number of the outstanding attractions such as—

"—Twin ignition, high compression, Bohnalite aluminum alloy pistons with Invar-struts, 7-bearing crankshaft with hollowed crankpins, Bijur centralized chassis lubrication, Houdaille and Lovejoy shock absorbers, Biflex-Nash bumpers and bumperettes, chrome plating over nickel for all exterior metal ware, double-drop frame, one-piece Salon fenders and longer wheelbase lengths.

"This new-type engineering of the '400' motors makes them by far the best performing cars I have ever built.

"I don't think anyone will ever want to use all the speed and power they deliver.

"Equipment is absolutely complete at the factory list price and you need buy no extras except a spare tire.

"If my judgment is worth anything you will find it well worth while today to examine this new automobile development with the greatest care."

Roaming Cows of Years Ago Succeeded by Modern Dairies

Grenada Has Model of Cleanliness, Purity and Sanitation in Field's Dairy—Proprietor, B. O. Field, Studied at A. & M. College and Visited Modern Dairies in South—New Equipment Being Added to Make Milk Better—Will Soon Be Able to Supply Bulgarian Buttermilk and Butter.

In the years ago Grenada families had to depend upon the "old cow" for milk and butter. The cow was either turned loose upon the streets or was driven back and forth to the pasture. The rear yard, or lot, was unavoidably oftentimes unsightly and by no means sanitary. Something like a third of a century ago, "everybody's cow" was turned loose upon the streets. The town was full of cows and there were lots of hogs, too, and it was considered a most unneighborly act for one to object to cows grazing around his house or in the yard. "Those were fine days" but they have given way to better ones. There is none who would go back to conditions as they were then.

These cows gradually gave way to the individual milk peddler who was not prepared to properly milk his cow or cows and who, despite himself, in many cases handled impure and unclean milk and butter. The individual milk man gradually gave way to the dairy, and the "dairies" were at first crude and in many cases poorly handled. But the dairies were improved. The agricultural colleges of the country aided and encouraged by the practical farmer and business man, have perhaps done more than any other one agency or force to give to the people better dairies and pure milk.

A first class dairy is one of the biggest assets of any community and such Grenada has in the Field's Dairy, just one mile south of town, on one of the prettiest and most valuable farms of the county. The proprietor, B. O. Field, is a product of the farm. He knew the practical side of providing feed stuff and of caring for pastures. But when he embarked in the dairy business, he was not satisfied with what he had gained by experience, but he sought that expert advice and training that can be had only by the scientific end of the cow industry. He spent days at the A. & M. College and there learned all he could from the head of the dairy department and from observing the way things were being milked daily. Besides this, he inspected the best dairies at Jackson, Memphis, West Point and other places and then came home and put into operation all he could of what he had learned and observed. He did not stop with his first tour of investigation, but has from time to time every year made observation trips to other dairies to learn whatever new he could and to see their equipment.

Thus it is that Field's Dairy at Grenada embodies much that is best of even the largest dairies of the country and is about as nearly perfect in equipment as those plants in which the investment is many times what the Grenada trade would justify.

The cows are not milked by hand, and when the milk is taken, forthwith it is carried and strained in an iced strainer where the cow heat is at once taken out. And by the way, this is an important thing for the milk purchaser to contemplate when considering what his milk costs. Milk bought from Field's Dairy has the cow heat removed and the purchaser is thereby saved in value what it would require to do this besides other items in the same connection which are money savers.

The milk bottles are not just "washed in a tank" but they are scientifically cleaned as required by the regulations of the State Board of Health.

Just now Mr. Field is installing much additional machinery and equipment, one of which is an ice machine for taking out the cow heat and which is but another evidence of his purpose to keep abreast of the best dairies.

Machinery to pasteurize milk is another big item that is being added. When this machine is installed, it will be a double assurance to the mothers for their babies and children that they can get pasteurized milk. Those who prefer the non-pasteurized milk will be served just as they are today.

Another thing which will be gratifying to the Grenada public is that this dairy will soon be prepared to furnish its customers not only milk and cream, but butter as well.

BULGARIAN OR CULTURE BUTTERMILK is another thing that will be a product of Field's Dairy when this new machinery is installed which will be within the next ten days or two weeks. Bulgarian buttermilk is emphasized by the hospitals of the land and is regarded as one of the very best ways to serve milk. It is a health builder, is very delightful to the taste and appeals especially to the appetites of those who use it.

Field's Dairy emphasizes QUICK AND PROMPT SERVICE and the very greatest courtesy to all. Mr. Field is greatly gratified at what he has been enabled to do, all of which he realizes has been made possible by the patronage of Grenada people. He is more than grateful for this. The business of the dairy has had a steady growth and is larger today than ever before. The preparations being made enable him to say that he is prepared now, and will be even more so within the next two weeks, to take care of many other customers.

A phone message to 392 will bring to your door the purest milk that can be had and that promptly and within a few days, the same phone message will bring you butter and Bulgarian buttermilk.

If you will visit Field's Dairy plant and make a personal inspection of it you will be more than interested in it.

Hoover Nominated On First Ballot At Republican National Convention

Curtis, of Kansas, on Tail of Ticket—Hoover's Fine Response to Telegram from Convention—What Curtis Said about Hoover Just Before Convention—Republican Senator Norris Makes Serious Charges and Gives His Opinion that His Party Has Woefully Blundered.

Kansas City, June 15.—The Republican party has selected Herbert Hoover, of California, for its presidential nominee, and in so doing has taken an epochal step.

For the first time it has passed over the professional politicians the men who make a business of running for office, and has picked a product of the new industrial age as the man best fitted, in its judgment, to guide the nation through the next four years.

And the convention spoke most decisively on this point. The first ballot taken in convention hall late last night gave Hoover the nomination with 837 votes. His nearest rival was Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, with 74.

The tribute of the ballot itself was preceded by two others. Twice while he was being placed in nomination the convention engaged in enthusiastic demonstrations, the first lasting 25 minutes and the second somewhat less.

A wire to him brought the following message in reply:

"I sincerely appreciate the confidence which the party has shown in me and the honor it bestows upon me."

"You convey too great a compliment when you say that I have earned the right to the presidential nomination. No man can establish such an obligation upon any part of the American people. My country owes me no debt. It gave me, as it gives every boy and girl, a chance. It gave me schooling, independence of action, opportunity for service and honor. In no other land could a boy from a country village without inheritance or influential friends look forward with unbounded hope."

"My whole life has taught me what American means. I am indebted to my country beyond any human power to repay. It has called me into two cabinets of two presidents. By these experiences I have observed the burdens and responsibilities of the greatest office in the world. That office touches the happiness of every home. It deals with the peace of nations. No man could think of it except in terms of solemn consecration."

Promises Farm Aid

"You ask me for a message: 'A new era and new forces have come into our economic life, and our setting among nations of the world. These forces demand of us constant study and effort if prosperity, peace and contentment shall be maintained."

"This convention, like those which have preceded it for two generations, has affirmed the principles of our party and defined its policies upon the problems which now confront us. I stand on that platform."

"You have manifested a deep concern in the problems of agriculture. You have pledged the party to support specific and constructive relief upon a nation-wide scale backed by the resources of the federal government. We will and must find a sound solution that will bring security and contentment to this great section of our people."

"But the problems of the next four years are more than economic. In a profound sense they are moral and spiritual. This convention has sounded a note of moral leadership."

Recites Naval Problems
"Let the world have peace? Shall prosperity in this nation be more thoroughly distributed? Shall we build steadily toward the ideal of equal opportunity to all our people? Shall there be secured that obedience to law which is the essential assurance of the life of our institutions? Shall honesty and righteousness in government and in business confirm the confidence of the people in their institutions and their laws?"

"Government must continue to leadership in answer to these questions. The government is more than administration; it is power for leadership and co-operation with the forces of business and cultural life in city, town and countryside. The presidency is more than executive responsibility. It is the inspiring symbol of all that is highest in America's purposes and ideals."

"It is vital to the welfare of the United States that the Republican party should continue to administer the government. It is essential that our party should be continued in organization and in strength in order that it may perpetuate its great principles in our national life."

"If elected by my fellow countrymen I shall give the best within me to advance the moral and material welfare of all our people and uphold the traditions of the Republican party so effectively exemplified by Calvin Coolidge."

The next day the convention nominated Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas for vice-president.

On the first ballot Curtis received the unanimous vote of all state delegations except those of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Minnesota gave Curtis 24 and Daves 3. North Dakota gave Curtis 7 and gave 6 to Atty.-Gen. Ekern of Wisconsin. South Dakota gave Curtis 3 and Daves 10. Wisconsin gave Hanford MacNider of Iowa 2, Ekern 13 and Curtis 8.

Totals were: Curtis 1052, Ekern 19, Daves 13, MacNider 2, absent 3.

From jockey boy to the Republican candidate for vice president is the thumbnail story of Chas. Curtis, the descendant of Chief White Plume, of the Kansas tribe of Indians.

He was born near North Topeka, Kan., but when orphaned at the age of five, he was sent to live with relatives on an Indian reservation in Kansas.

At 10 he was working in a livery stable in Topeka, after school hours. At 16 he signed up as a jockey on the Kansas tracks, but he soon realized he had better get an education, so he worked as a newspaper reporter in town and studied law at night.

At 24 he was made prosecutor of Shawnee county, Kansas, and as he told Senator Borah in answering the recent prohibition questionnaire, "when I took office the saloons were running wide open in Topeka, and every saloon was closed within 30 days."

Curtis has been majority leader of the Senate since the death of Henry Cabot Lodge. For years before that he was the party whip.

In 1924, he was somewhat weary of his senatorial chores and would have appreciated being made vice president. But he had voted against President Coolidge on the soldier bonus, and the Coolidge forces prevented his nomination.

Curtis voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, but refused to vote for it the second time when the Senate tried to pass it over the veto.

In choosing Curtis, the convention has not only sought to render honor to him in compensation for years of party devotion, but it has picked a man who is tremendously popular in the farm belt, and thereby strengthened the ticket in one of the alleged weak spots of Hoover.

Curtis was a candidate for the presidential nomination and about the time the convention assembled his campaign manager gave 22 "reasons" why Hoover should not be nominated, among them were these:

Hoover's alleged failure to take any part in political affairs until he was 43; his long connection with British firms and a residence of 21 years under the British flag; his advocacy of the League of Nations; his seconding of the appeal of the late President Wilson for the election of a Democratic congress; alleged wartime discrimination by holding down wheat prices in the North while permitting Southern cotton to soar; an alleged unforgiving attitude toward the Germans after the war; his abolition of negro segregation in the census bureau in Washington. His activities from London to China have been delved into. All these criticisms have been answered by Hoover's friends apparently to the satisfaction of far more than a majority of the Republican national convention.

Senator Norris, Republican, issued a statement about Hoover's nomination that fairly blisters. "Senator Fess, the keynote of the convention, defended Daugherty on the floor of the Senate," he said, and opposed the investigation.

"Mabel Walker Willebrandt, chairman of the important committee on credentials—the committee that was careful to seat all the Hoover delegates from the solid south—while she was assistant attorney general of the United States, went to New York to testify in behalf of Daugherty. The rank and file of the great Republican party will be disgusted and humiliated," he said, "but the power trust, as well as the Hoovers, Daughertys, the Sinclairs, the Dohenys, the Falls, the Smoots, the Hayeses, the Lenroots, the Fesses, the Moseses and the machine politicians everywhere, will be happy and delighted."

"If this program is endorsed at the polls, it will be the duty of the Senate to apologize to power trust Insull and his man from Illinois, for whose election he contributed more than $100,000; to seat Boss Vare, the representative of the Philadelphia political machine; to reinstate Daugherty; to apologize to Sinclair and Doheny and to pass a law returning to them the property which the supreme court of the United States said they had fraudulently obtained."

SORE Could Not Rest

Mrs. J. H. Nichols, who lives at 513 Elm Tree Lane, Lexington, Ky., says:

"Some few years ago, my health was bad. I had very severe pains in my sides. My nerves were in a terrible condition. I could not rest."

"The lower part of my body was very sore. I did not feel like eating, and did not sleep well at all at nights."

"A friend of mine recommended Cardui. I began taking it and saw quite an improvement in my condition. I kept it up until I felt strong and well."

About a year ago, Mrs. Nichols says, she found herself in a nervous, run-down condition. "I took Cardui again," she adds, "and it helped me wonderfully. It is a splendid tonic."

Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic, made from purely vegetable ingredients. At all druggists.

Browning-Koonce.

On the afternoon of Saturday, June 9, Miss Velma Koonce became the wife of Mr. D. H. Browning, Dr. W. E. Farr, pastor of the First Baptist Church, saying the words that united the two in holy wedlock. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's father, Mr. W. W. Koonce, in the Graysport community.

Mrs. Browning, who is a member of one of the prominent and well-known families of this county, received her college education at the Mississippi State Teachers College in Hattiesburg. She has been teaching school since her graduation. She is regarded as a young woman of unusual attainments. She is sweet and pleasant of disposition, is attractive in person and is gifted in those arts that go to make the good wife and helpmeet.

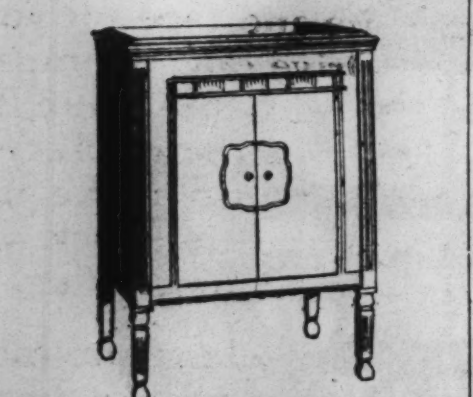

Her husband is a prominent young planter of Sidon. He enjoys the confidence of those who know him and has a large circle of friends in that section.

The Sentinel tenders its congratulations.

Miss Mary Patton Wilkins reached home the first of the week after having attended Notre Dame College in Baltimore, Md. the past session. This was Miss Wilkins' second year in that school. Following the commencement exercises this year she went to visit for a few days Mrs. W. H. Ryan on Long Island and came from there home.

Fry-Stacy.
Dr. W. E. Farr, pastor of the First Baptist Church, pronounced marriage vows on last Sunday morning, June 17th, at 9 o'clock between Mr. E. F. Fry and Miss Lillian Stacy, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's sister in Water Valley.

Mrs. Fry, who is a sister of Dr. F. A. Stacy, of Grenada, is a most estimable young woman and is exceedingly popular. Her husband is a prominent and highly esteemed business man of Blytheville, Ark.

Mr. Harry Greenfield, who underwent a minor operation at the Grenada Hospital last Saturday, is back on the job again.

Mrs. J. W. Cathey and daughter, Maxyne, left Saturday for a two weeks' visit in Dallas, Texas with relatives.

Mr. E. W. Peters left Wednesday afternoon for Memphis to attend a conference of salesmen of the Cole Manufacturing Co., of which concern he is a representative. From Memphis, the entire group of salesmen will go to Baysport, Minn. for a week's outing.

Mrs. E. M. Sherwood and little granddaughter, Bettye Mae Sherwood, have returned from Albany, Ind. where they had been visiting Mrs. Sherwood's son, Mr. C. R. Sherwood, and family.

Mrs. B. S. Dudley was called Saturday night to D'Lo to the bedside of her father who underwent a major operation. The Sentinel hopes that she found him greatly improved upon her arrival.

Matthews-Darby.

A wedding of interest was solemnized Wednesday evening, June 20, at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Holcomb, of Holcomb, Miss., when Mrs. Hortense Darby and Mr. Mahlon S. Matthews were united in marriage. Rev. J. H. Holder, pastor of the Methodist church of Grenada, used the ring ceremony in pronouncing the marriage vows.

Sweet peas in profusion and other flowers of the season were arranged most artistically in the rooms used for the occasion. The bride was most charmingly gowned and wore a corsage of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews left for a ten day automobile trip, after which they will be at home in Grenada.

Mrs. Matthews' family is one of the most substantial and prominent in Grenada county. Her father, in the years ago, founded the little town 10 miles west of Grenada which bears his name and he has long taken an active interest in the business, religious and political life of the county.

The bride is vivacious and charming in manner and is attractive in person as well as in disposition. She is known and has a wide circle of friends who will be interested to know of her wedding.

Mr. Matthews only recently came to Grenada to engage in business. He has come to be esteemed by those who have got to know him and he has already earned the reputation of being a good business man.

The Sentinel joins in extending its congratulations and best wishes.

Mrs. W. E. Jackson and her attractive daughter, Miss Thelma, accompanied by their niece and cousin, Mrs. L. R. Ledbetter, of Vicksburg, and the latter's little daughter, Frances, left last Saturday to visit relatives in Ecru and Holly Springs.

Messrs. Ernest and John R. Willingham, Ernest West and Pace of Grenada, were Sunday visitors here.—Calhoun City Monitor Herald.

Messrs. A. G. Roane, J. H. Murray, W. E. Jackson and S. H. Horton left Wednesday morning for a short outing on Washington Lake, near Greenville, where the fish are said to be biting good.

Rev. E. G. Mohler of Grenada, was mingling with his host of friends here Wednesday.—Batesville Panolian.

Messrs. Vernon Williams and Thomas Perry left last Saturday via automobile for a two weeks' visit to New York City, Washington, and other points in the east.

Jack Floyd, of Russellville, Ala., brother of Mrs. J. B. Horn, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Horn in their home on Snider Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Perry returned to their home in Jackson the first of the week after a few days stay in Grenada with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Perry, on Main Street. Their sister, Miss Mary Lillian Perry, accompanied them home for a visit.

Dr. W. E. Farr, pastor of the First Baptist Church, left Monday afternoon to attend the Baptist World Alliance in session in Toronto, Canada. He went via Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Dr. Farr is expected home the middle of next week.

Mr. J. L. McFarland and sons, of Grenada, spent Sunday with the family of Mr. J. E. Cunningham.—Batesville Panolian.

Misses Martha Lynn Grant and Blue Horton have returned from a two weeks' visit in the Capital City.

Mr. J. L. Kimzey returned Saturday to Memphis after spending a week in Grenada visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Kimzey, and family.

Miss Fay Gunn, who is employed in the bank at Calhoun City, spent the day Sunday in Grenada with homefolks.

Eldredge Parks spent the day last Sunday in Memphis with his mother, Mrs. Estella Parks, and family.

Messrs. Eugene Irby of Oxford, and Hiram Brown West, of Grenada, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Kemp this week.—Calhoun City Monitor-Herald.

William Williams, Sam Simmons, Jr., James Russell Lockett and Roger Kimzey left last Saturday for Camp McClellan, Ala. where they enrolled for four weeks' training in the Citizens Military Training Camp.

Mr. J. M. Cooley left Wednesday afternoon for Greenwood to spend some days visiting his daughter there, Mrs. Jessie Quinn. Mr. Cooley's many friends are glad to see him looking so well and to know that he has improved so rapidly since his recent operation at the Grenada Hospital.

Mr. Andrew M. Carothers, who left Saturday afternoon for Minneapolis, Minn., to attend the convention of Rotary International as the representative of the Grenada club, was summoned home Monday night on account of the critical illness of his wife. Mr. Carothers received the wire Tuesday morning and caught the first train home, arriving at 2:20 a. m. Thursday. His wife, who had to undergo a major operation early Tuesday, he found greatly improved, a fact that the Sentinel is glad to be able to state. This paper joins with many other friends in hoping that Mrs. Carothers will soon be restored completely to health.

Miss Ethel Murphy of Grenada, is a visitor here today.—Calhoun City Monitor-Herald.

Dr. and Mrs. J. K. Aven and Miss Evelyn Cardwell, a student nurse in Grenada Hospital, spent the first of the week in Memphis.

Marvin Sanders has returned from Crystal Springs where he spent several days aiding in the shipment of tomatoes from that great trucking center.

Mr. Edgar Provine, of Grenada, is visiting here at this time.—Calhoun City Monitor-Herald.

John Sidney Sharp, Jr., is being welcomed home from Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., where he was in school the past session.

Mrs. F. V. Demarest, of Memphis, was the guest last Friday and Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sisk on Line Street. She is Mrs. Sisk's cousin.

The Sentinel has been requested to announce that Rev. Wayne Allison, of Jackson, Miss., will fill the pulpit at the First Baptist Church next Sunday, June 24th, at both the morning and evening hours. Mr. Allison is well known in this section, having at one time been the popular pastor of the Water Valley church. He will preach also in the Holcomb church next Sunday, the hour being 3 o'clock p. m. The people of Holcomb are delighted that they are going to have the opportunity to hear him.

Miss Margaret Trusty, the vivacious young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Trusty, left Tuesday for Little Rock, Ark. to be the guest of Miss Mary Leona Morris for several days.

Mr. Peyton Irby of Grenada, is a visitor here this week.—Calhoun City Monitor-Herald.

Mr. Rodney Henderson is at home from the University of Mississippi, where he attended school, to spend the summer with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Henderson, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Creed Watkins, of Oklahoma City, Okla., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Heath on Main Street. They arrived in Grenada last Thursday and expect to be here probably two weeks. Mrs. Watkins and Mrs. Heath are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Phip Spears, of Vernon, Texas, accompanied by Miss Joy Seals, also of Vernon, and Miss Eutha Karr, of Orwood, Miss., were guests the first of the week of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Grant and family on South Street. Mr. Spears is Mrs. Grant's cousin.

Miss Lula Mae Provine, of Grenada, is visiting relatives and friends here this week.—Calhoun City Monitor-Herald.

Mrs. John S. King and little son, Whit, arrived the latter part of last week from their home in Memphis to spend several days in Grenada visiting their sisters and aunts, Misses Robbie and Juliet Doak. Mr. King accompanied them and remained Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Allie Ross and three children have returned home from Washington, D. C. where they have been since early last fall.

Mr. Thomas D. Beatty arrived in Grenada the first of the week in his car from Syracuse, N. Y. to spend some days visiting his grandfather, Mr. T. P. Lamkin, and his aunt, Mrs. Eloise Wilkins, and family on Margin Street. He has just been graduated from Syracuse University.

A letter received from Mrs. Wm. C. McLean a few days ago from Dunedin, Fla. brought the news that Judge McLean is a great deal better. Mrs. McLean stated that the judge was more than grateful to his friends at home who had manifested such interest in him, and that he was going to return to Grenada just as soon as his condition would permit.

Mr. H. L. Honeycutt was a business visitor to Brookhaven Wednesday and Thursday of this week. While there he was the guest of his son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Honeycutt, and his young grandson, Roy, Jr.

Mr. J. A. Moreland, who has been in a hospital at Jackson for quite a year returned to Grenada to spend a while Monday, last. He is looking well and is always interesting in his grape vine philosophy about matters in general. His many friends were glad to see him. He is stopping at the City Boarding House on Main Street.

Miss Lynn Dunavant left Sunday to spend this week in Memphis attending an X-ray school in order to better equip herself for her duties in the Grenada Clinic. Miss Dunavant is a splendid young woman and by her skill as a laboratory technician she has made herself invaluable to the corps of doctors comprising the clinic.

Judge D. S. Wright, known among his Grenada friends as "Donald", was in Grenada Sunday a visitor at the home of his mother, Mrs. Genie Wright.

Mr. W. M. Dubard accompanied Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Dubard to the delta last Saturday afternoon and remained over Sunday. Mr. Dubard visited his son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Allen, at Drew, while the other members of the party went to Shaw where their children had visited for several days.

Mr. J. N. Roberts, who is now spending the greater part of his time with a son at Greenwood, is visiting his son, O. H. Roberts and family in Grenada.

Mr. W. B. Hoffa was a business visitor to New Orleans this week.

25 YEARS AGO IN GRENADA

From the Files of THE GRENADA SENTINEL

The board of public school directors on last Saturday elected Prof. J. M. Hubard, of Memphis, principal, and Miss Sallie Campbell as one of the assistants.

Mr. T. C. Buford, cashier of the Peoples' Bank at Sumner, Miss., was on our streets Monday. He is a pleasant genial gentleman. He is a great admirer of Longino, and says Tallahatchie county will cast her vote for him for Senator, as well as for Noel for Governor.

Hon. R. C. Lee, of Madison, was in Grenada Tuesday. He was reared in this county, where he has many friends. He is an affable, courteous and popular gentleman, whom it is always a pleasure to meet. Mr. Lee is U. S. District Attorney for the southern district of Mississippi.

On last Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. V. R. James gave a most delightful and unique entertainment in honor of her sister, Miss May Carr. About twenty children were present. Some of the girls were in long dresses to represent the ladies, while four of the little boys were storekeepers, and two of the girls kept an ice cream stand. Paper money was made and divided among the little folks. Then they went to the play stores and bought anything the storekeeper had on hand. Everyone declared it a most enjoyable entertainment.

Mr. W. E. Rollins, an old and popular Grenada boy, spent a few days in Grenada this week, visiting relatives and friends.

Dr. S. A. Steel will preach in the Methodist church tomorrow (Sunday) morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. S. G. Phillips and wife, of Duck Hill, and their sister, Miss Pearl Hogan, of Maben, was in our town a while Thursday on business.

Little Miss Willie Cook, of Greenwood, has been the guest of Miss Kettle this week.

Miss Maggie Owens is visiting relatives at Oxford.

Mr. Townes Leigh, of Paris, Texas, is visiting his sister, Mrs. O. C. Leigh. He is a young gentleman of sterling qualities and fine educational advantages, and is now the vice-president of the Mary Conner Female College at Paris, an honor that any one may justly feel proud of. Mr. Leigh lived in Grenada about six years, where he has a number of friends and admirers.

Fourteen cents for July cotton! But farmers do not be deceived by this spurt in the market now. We believe, however, that cotton will bring a good price in the fall; but do not neglect the corn crop.

Miss Mabel Armstrong, of Coffeeville, is the guest of Mrs. J. P. Broadstreet this week.

Mrs. H. M. Richard and little daughter, Mattie, have returned from an extended visit to relatives at their old home in Tennessee.

HIGHLANDERS MEET AGAIN

At our usual meeting we had the largest attendance in a long time. There were twenty-seven present. The weekly ball game resulted in a second victory for the Bulldogs by taking the second in a row. The Panthers resolved to lick the Bulldogs next week. The score ended 16 to 4.

We had four new members this week and one visitor. Rev. McLeod was also present.

Talking about "eats", oh boy, Mr. H. L. Honeycutt paid for them this week. He gave us all the hot dogs and drinks we could hold.

SAYS STEPHENS A DOER

The Meridian Star gives it out that Congressman Webber Wilson, who is aspiring to Senator Stephens' seat, has challenged the Senator to joint debate. No doubt Mr. Wilson is depending greatly upon his oratorical ability in this campaign, but from all indications he has another guess coming. Senator Stephens is not so much on oratory, but is a doer, and the people are not as strong on "windjamming" as they once were.—Winston County Journal.

Column About Colored People of Grenada County Items by J. H. Phillips

Rev. C. W. Walton Dead
Through the kindness of Mrs. W. R. Todd, a white lady of our community, we got the information of the death of Rev. C. W. Walton, our firm friend, and at one time pastor of Vincent M. E. Church, this city. The news came to her from his daughter, who resides in Aberdeen, Miss., the native home of the Walton family. It was here that he was born and reared. His parents belonged to a Mr. Joe Walton, the father of Mrs. W. R. Todd, and though a slave enjoyed the privilege of refinement and culture that placed him above the average of the race. As a slave boy, Charley Walton was often heard to say that he was treated with much deference and his opportunities were not circumscribed.

This was evinced in his life, as a man and as a minister of the gospel. He served Vincent M. E. Church as pastor for 3 years and as such deported himself in such a way as to endeavor himself to his flock. He was an excellent preacher a splendid pastor and true and tried friend.

The church here at Grenada bows in humble submission to the Divine command for him to come up and be crowned a faithful servant realizing that we have lost a true friend and at one time a much beloved pastor.

Rev. J. J. Elliott, of Holly Springs, stopped over in our city last Saturday as guest of our pastor, Rev. G. M. Olishohn, who had served the Holly Springs charge for 4 years. Then, too, he was our boyhood associate back in the 70s. We enjoyed relating incidents of our early life, boxing, wrestling and sometimes fighting. Time, of course have made inroads upon the physical man but it seems that we both have some energy left and still are active working to complete our record. Rev. Elliott preached two very interesting sermons Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Both of the texts selected for the occasion were appropriate. Those who heard him complimented him very highly for his effort.

On Tuesday morning of last week sadness came into the community of Union Hill neighborhood for one of the old citizens had answered the last call. William (Bill) Hardiman who had been one of the community's most potent factors had died. His death was no surprise, as he was afflicted with a malady for which medical science had found no cure. Mr. Hardiman was a good citizen, an energetic and industrious farmer, a loving husband, kind father and respected citizen. For more than 40 years he was a member of Union Hill A. M. E. Church and performed all of his duties as a Christian. We join in grief at his departure.

The thirteen graduates who finished their course at the last session of the public school desire to thank the generous public for the recognition shown them at the close of the class program a few nights ago, and promise to try to live and act worthy of their consideration.

Dr. W. M. Parker, who was a recent visitor for several days of Miss Clyde Golden, has returned to Tuskegee, Ala., where he is connected with the U. S. Veterans Hospital. He reported his stay in our city as having been a very pleasant one.

The missionary women of Vincent Chapel M. E. Church, led by their most efficient leader, Mrs. G. A. Seals, visited the sick Saturday evening and carried them nourishing things to eat.

On May 4th Revs. Wm. Barnes, Scrivens, Blakes, J. A. Topps and Prof. C. Dobbs and L. S. Ash left for Chicago, Ill., to attend the 28th session of the A. M. E. General Conference.

On May 31st Rev. A. Blackman and Mrs. Sykes of Grenada, Miss. united in holy wedlock.

Mr. Eugene Bateast was buried at Trimble Cemetery June 1st.

Mr. John Brown was buried on Wednesday, May 30th at the Sweet Home Cemetery.

Mr. Alex Bledsoe, of Oxberry, died June 4th and was buried June 5th at the St. Peter's cemetery.

Jun. 10th was a high day at Tusahoma A. M. E. church. We celebrated children's day.

The Swaynes Chapel M. E. church also celebrated children's day, and a splendid program was rendered.

We are having quite a deal of rainfall, but in spite of all we have splendid crops of cotton and corn, though we are having the second overflow. It is covering the crops in the low sections.

St. Andrew missionary Baptist church celebrated children's day June 17th at Peete.

The writer reports a splendid session of the General Conference, and while on the trip for business spent a short while in Gary, Ind. and East Chicago, Ill. with sister, Mrs. Alice Ross and friends, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Webb. It was quite a pleasure trip as well as a business one.

Mr. Sylvester Wiggins died Friday morning June 15th and was buried in the St. Peter's cemetery, in the Oxberry community.

There will be a rally at Tusahoma A. M. E. church July 29th, 1928.

First aid in entertaining, nowadays, is a General Electric Refrigerator. With it you can make those delicate, different salads and aspics and desserts. You can make them at your leisure - the same morning, or the day before, or whenever you wish. There's plenty of room to store them. There's the scientific cold to keep them completely fresh.

You will like the quietness and the simplicity of the General Electric Refrigerator. It never needs oiling. It hasn't a drain pipe or a belt or a fan. All its machinery is enclosed in the hermetically sealed casing mounted on top of the cabinet. And there is a remarkable large shelf area because the chilling chamber is so compact. All the models are up on legs, so the floor under them can easily be cleaned.

We want you to come in and see the various models. Only by studying them carefully can you fully realize how really revolutionary they are. Let us tell you about our special time payment offer.

ther that he declined to fight while his opponent was armed and that Furr advised him that he was bucking against a federal officer. He says, also, that Furr searched the truck thoroughly from front to rear, for what he did not know.

In a few minutes Furr returned to his car and Pace requested his name, stating that he'd meet the officer later when he was not armed. With that, Furr jumped into the road again and as he left the car, the sheriff relieved him of his gun.

Pace states that Furr kicked him below the belt and as he did so, he grabbed the officer's leg and they clinched. When they had scuffled for a few moments the sheriff left his seat and separated them, declaring the end of round one of the bout. He and Furr then drove off.

Besides the sheriff, there were three other witnesses to the difficulty. Furr is a man in the late thirties. He is tall, well-built and weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. He has been connected with the prohibition forces for a number of years and it is said that the very mention of his name brings terror to the hearts of moonshiners.

Pace is 27 years of age. He is of medium build and weighs much less than Furr. He has been in Grenada about 5 years and is highly regarded by all who know him. He is quiet and unobtrusive and has the reputation of being orderly at all times. He also has the reputation of minding his own business strictly.

There has been considerable talk about the streets of Grenada since the engagement and many versions of the affair have been heard. There is some talk of taking the matter to the courts but whether or not this will materialize is not known at this time.

UPSET With Stomach Spells

"I have taken Black-Draught ever since I was a child, and can recommend it as a splendid medicine for family use," says Mrs. Cora Maberry, of Sagesay, Okla. "My mother used it, in bringing up her family, and after I had a home of my own, I continued to use it, as I thought it was good to give the children."

"My children did not mind taking Black-Draught, and so when they got upset with stomach spells, or were constipated, I gave them Black-Draught tea."

"They are all grown now and have homes of their own, but I still keep Black-Draught in the house and use it myself when I wake up in the morning feeling dull and head-achey, and have a bad taste in my mouth."

4. Governor Bilbo in discussing the public schools said, "The first plank in my platform in my recent race for governor was an eight months' school term which is now an established fact."

Was Gov. Bilbo right or wrong? If he was wrong in making that statement, then somebody has deceived the Mississippi public, have they not?

5. It has been said many times the people of Grenada county will vote for anything to increase taxes, but we think that they have changed their minds to some extent. Do you remember that an effort was made to establish a county court in Grenada county and a city hall in the city of Grenada? Both met with an overwhelming defeat at the polls. It seems that we are now thinking of economy.

Is it not about time to stop in issuing bonds and further taxing ourselves, and that we should see just exactly where we stand? It is not time for all of us to give more thought to what we are able to pay and to the debts we have already contracted? Regardless of the value of the thing being considered, there is a limit beyond which no people can pay.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Possessing characteristics that have earned him the nickname "Go Ahead," George Morton, Virginian, is the recipient of a communication (intended for his father who is in the East) from Tom "Fair," asking the senior Morton, for sake of old friendship, to send word to rescue his foster daughter, Stella, a relative of the Mortons, from a band of outlaws of whom "Fair" is the leader. "Fair" himself cannot bring her out, being watched by an enemy whom he designates only as "Jim." In the absence of his father, Go Ahead decides to go for Stella. As a cowboy, but with credentials as an official of the United States Secret Service, he leaves for Lobo, the place designated, with a colored attendant, Caesar.

CHAPTER II.—At "Robbers' Roost," the outlaws' stronghold, Fair explains the situation to Stella. The girl, eighteen years old, does not want to leave her adopted father or give up the free life she has led; more like a boy than a girl.

CHAPTER III.—Fair, at Jim Barker's direction (the "Jim" the outlaws referred to and the sheriff of the county) sends a gang to run a shipment of rifles and ammunition into Mexico and return with a consignment of whisky. He puts a man, Wade, whom he knows is his enemy, in charge. Unknown to Fair, Stella, with Wade's consignment, rides, dressed as a boy, with the whisky runners. Fair's messenger returns with the news that Go Ahead is on his way.

CHAPTER IV.—The bandits' errand is successful, and the party brings up at Barker's ranch. There Wade refuses to allow Stella to return to Robbers' Roost, making a proposal of marriage, which the girl refuses. Wade declares he will force her to marry him, and threatens to attack her. They struggle.

CHAPTER V.—Go Ahead comes on the scene, witnesses the struggle and accuses Wade of having a suspicion of Stella's sex. She tells him her name is "Bob." According to arrangements with Wade, Barker appears and is also displeased by Go Ahead. A Portuguese cowboy, Diego, fires at Morton, and "Bob" escapes. Wade follows the gang to Robbers' Roost. Go Ahead also gets away and goes after the girl.

CHAPTER VI.—Stella overtakes the outlaws, her arrival antonishing them in the plot, but they say nothing. Jack Green joins them and learns from Stella of Go Ahead's presence at the ranch. He tells her who her rescuer is. Stella decides to return and rejoin Go Ahead. She is pursued. Go Ahead intercepts her.

CHAPTER VII.—The girl explains the situation and the two ride away from their pursuers together. By a ruse, they evade their enemies. Two of the bandits, lagging behind the rest, are made prisoners by Go Ahead, and the gang is sent on for Lobo. Go Ahead asks "Bob" about Stella, but the girl does not understand him, though he tells her his mission. At Lobo, Barker's headquarters, the two arrange to stay at the house of a friend, Bridget.

CHAPTER VIII.—At the town, Go Ahead maliciously turns his prisoners over to Sheriff Barker as horse thieves. Barker, though staggered by having two of his followers given into his custody, has to accept the situation. Go Ahead sees Captain Carter, of the regular army, in the town, and knows he has a friend.

CHAPTER IX

BRIDGET'S was built on the "system of units" plan. Originally a good-sized adobe building, it had been supplemented by frame and even by galvanized iron additions until it had taken on a non-descript, not to say heterogeneous, aspect.

When Go Ahead saw it he grinned. "Did somebody build it from the correspondence school directions in the Women's Home Chronicle telling how to build a house out of a soap box and a tin can?" he asked.

Stella's eyes widened. "Why?" she exclaimed, "I never thought of it in that way before; but that's just what it does look like." Then her innate loyalty to her friends got the better of her sense of humor. "I don't care," she protested, "it's clean, and the eats are good, and Bridget's a good sort. She's been mighty good to me, and I'm mighty fond of her."

"Good boy! Stand up for your friends. I hope she's got a room for us."

"I'll go in and see." Coloring faintly, Stella scurried around the side of the house, darted into the adobe section, from which appetizing odors were floating out upon the air, and precipitated herself into the arms of a comfortable looking Irish woman who was cooking at the stove. "Oh, Bridget, Bridget!" she cried. "I'm so glad to see you."

"Arrah! And is it yourself, ma-younneen?" Bridget's arms closed about the slim form of the girl. "Sure, it's the long time since you've been in, so it Barker. Ah! You needn't be tryin' to explain at all. It's meself that knows what's been goin' on. . . . Why, why, darlin'! What's after being the matter with ye?"

Stella was sobbing on the woman's motherly shoulders. "Oh, oh, Bridget!" she gulped. "I'm so miserable and so happy, and so—so—"

"Whist, whist, child! That's enough for one bit. . . . Who is he, darlin'?"

"He?" Stella tore herself free. "Sure! Sure it's a man in it, there is. Whatever else should a girl be happy and miserable all at once for?"

Stella drew herself up. "You're all wrong, Bridget," she said, coldly. "I'm not a girl. I'm a man and—"

"Not a girl? Arrah! Ain't ye now? Think of that!" Stella stamped her foot. "I'm a man—or a boy, anyway. And I'm going to stay one. I—I—Oh! Why won't the men let me alone?"

"God knows, dearie. But I'm thinkin' maybe it's just because they are men—the poor omadhoons. Who's been troublin' ye now? Barker?"

"No! Yes! Oh, it's too long to tell now. But Wade and Barker trapped me at the J/B ranch this morning. And if Go Ahead hadn't come a—"

"Who come along?"

"Go Ahead. My cousin from the East. Dad sent for him—"

"Sure an' I know. Fair sent me word about him a month ago. It's a fine mouthfillin' name he's got. But I suppose he got it because he was most unlike it. Likely he turned out to be a lah-dah-dah. The Irish woman dropped her eyelids to hide the twinkle.

"Dude! Dude!" Stella laughed scornfully. "Well, if you'd seen the way he handled Wade and Barker this mornin' and Barker again just now—Oh, I wish I had time to tell you all about him, but it would take me a week. But he's a real man and—his name, too."

Bridget shrugged her mighty shoulders. "An' wouldn't anybody be nice to a pretty girl cousin the first time he sees her?" she scoffed. "But I'm not pretty. And he doesn't dream that I'm a girl—and I'm not. I won't be a girl! And he mustn't know it if I am."

Bridget stood back and ran a shrewd, appraising eye over Stella's face and figure. "I'm thinkin' maybe it's right you are," she conceded. "It's a lot more like a rowdy boy than a girl you're lookin' right now. But in three months be-like—or maybe in less—Well! It's not sayin', I am. An' as for pretty—but no matter about that. Where is this buckaroo of yours?"

"Out in front. He's looking for me—the Stella me, you know; and he doesn't know he's found me. He's come here to wait for word from dad where he's to meet me. But—but" the girl's face crimsoned—"he says he wants a room—a room—for us, and—"

"And why not—"

"Bridget!"

"Seein' that it's a boy you are?" "That's different."

"So it is. So it is. Sure, child, it's only teasin' you a bit I was. I'll give him a room, but as all my spacious guest chambers are full I'll have to give him a wee small one next to me and to put you in another small one at the front of the house."

"Bridget!"

"Ah! It's the one next to me I'll give you if you're wantin' it so bad as all that. . . . An' now I'll go see that young man of yours and see whether it's give my consent I will. . . . Oh, whist! child, I'm not doubtin' that it's all right he is. But I'll give him the once-over before I trust him or any other man. An' if he ain't all right, niver a step will you be goin' off with him."

Stella, however, clung to her. "He is all right, Bridget," she panted. "He is. Dad sent for him—"

"So he did. But he's never seen him."

"No-o. But I have. And I know a man when I see one. He came out here to help me, and he got into dreadful trouble—that is, it would have been dreadful trouble if he hadn't been so splendid. Oh! if you'd seen the way he handled Wade and Barker and Diego, too. Everybody calls him Go Ahead—and—a shadow crossed the girl's face—and it makes him so venturesome and—"

"There, there, darlin', don't be takin' on so. You can just tell him who you are an'—"

"But I don't want to tell him who I am. I—I want to ride and talk and—and all that with him first—"

"Indade an' you won't!" And Bridget resumed her interrupted progress to the front of the house.

Meanwhile, Go Ahead had sat him down on a bench near the front door and had been trying to concentrate his mind on the revision of his plans, which had been somewhat disarranged by the completeness of Barker's surrender. Go Ahead was familiar with Barker's type and he knew well that such men are never so dangerous as after they are beaten; for then they fight by proxy or from ambush. To recover his lost "face" Barker must somehow destroy his adversary, and he would not dare to fight fair. Go Ahead knew that it became him to guess what Barker would try to do next and to forestall him.

But he had great difficulty in keeping his mind concentrated on the problem. Just as he would get a train of thought straightened out and running smoothly, some act or word of Bob's would pop into his mind and he would lose his place, go off at a tangent, and later find himself miles away from the conclusion at which he had been aiming.

After this had happened several times, he jumped to his feet, fuming.

"Confound that boy, and his scrape!" he raged, to himself. "I've got to get him and his troubles out of my head. He's a good kid, but he isn't the whole works by a long shot. He's just an immaterial cogwheel, after all."

Go Ahead glanced at the watch on his wrist. "Where the devil is the boy, anyway?" he fumed. "He's been gone long enough to rent this whole shebang, let alone engaging one room. . . . Oh, he's all right at that. Looks sort of effeminate maybe, but—oh, well. You never can tell about these kids. Lot's of 'em haven't got sense enough to be afraid. . . . Oh, hello, Bob! I thought you were trying to buy out the place."

Stella and Bridget had come upon him unawares.

Stella was confused, for the first time since Go Ahead had met her. She had no answer ready to his chaff, and she responded only by introducing him to Bridget—and she did this awkwardly. Bridget's stern stand in regard to him, to say nothing of her insinuations, had left the girl ill at ease.

Bridget, however, quickly swept all awkwardness aside. "Bob's been tellin' me how you helped him out this mornin'," she said. "Sure an' it's myself that's mighty grateful to you for that same. Bob's like me own boy; I brought him up, so to speak. An' that Wade is a dirty blaggard to try to hurt a gosssoon half his size." Bridget's eyes searched Go Ahead's face as she talked for any sign that might betray consciousness of Stella's sex.

But she saw none. Go Ahead only grinned. "Help him?" he retorted. "It was he who helped me and saved my life. Have you seen him in action, ma'am? No? Well, you've got something to live for then. He does honor to your bringin' up. I think I never saw a likelier youngster—if he wasn't so darned venturesome."

Bridget rolled her eyes at Stella, who grinned reluctantly. "Yes," she answered, glancing back to Go Ahead, "an' him so slim an' so like me." Bridget was determined to probe Go Ahead's mind to the very bottom.

"Sure thing. He's good looking enough to be a girl." Go Ahead grinned maliciously at Stella, who was looking down and blushing deeply. "But he doesn't fight like a girl; no, ma'am. He and I have got to be great pals in short order."

Bridget was satisfied. "You can't always be tellin' about young things like him," she replied, with a meaning that Go Ahead was far from suspecting. "You'll be after wantin' rooms?"

"I've come from the East to get my Cousin Stella," he said. "I believe Fair sent you word?"

Bridget nodded. "Most a month ago," she answered.

"The messenger had difficulty in findin' me, I believe; and then of course he had to take some time to find out whether he could trust me. We left for here a few hours after he broke the news. He said that you would probably have a message for me."

"I only knew that you were comin'."

"Well, in that case, I was to stay here till it did come in some form or other. So you see my stay is pretty indefinite. If you can put us up—"

"Sure, I can do that. Green came by yesterday an' told me that you was on the way before he went on to the Roost. Most like he got there last night."

"He did," Stella chimed in before she thought.

"Why?" queried the Irishwoman, surprisedly.

"Yes. He—he was with the men who were chasing us this mornin'. I—I recognized him." Stella thought she had got out of her predicament very well.

Bridget accepted the explanation with a nod. "Sure! Then Fair knows you're here an' he'll be sendin' in word soon," she said to Go Ahead. "You'll be here the night, anyway. Come in, an' I'll be after showin' you the rooms. It's only two small ones I've got."

"Two minutes later Bridget threw open the door of a tiny bed-chamber and let Go Ahead enter. "Bob's room is back, near mine," she said. "I'll take him to it. Supper'll be ready in half an hour or less."

"I'll be ready for it," laughed Go Ahead, with real earnestness in his voice.

At the door of Stella's room Bridget would have gone on. But the girl stopped her. "Green came to meet me," she said, hurriedly. "He brought me a message from dad. He knows that I know Go Ahead. So dad probably won't send any other message. And Go Ahead'll wait and wait till Barker manages to get him shot from behind. I—I got to get him away from here quick. Can't—can't you help me?"

Bridget looked at the girl tenderly. "You lamb," she breathed. "It's meself will get a message from your father this very night."

"But—but—how can you?"

"By weeja board; how else?"

"Oh!" Stella laughed hysterically. "And what will weeja say?" she demanded.

"I'll have to be consultin' it afore I'll know. But I'm thinkin' it'll be instructin' the two of ye's to go wait for that minx Stella somewhere east of here, close by the J/B ranch belike. Now I must be hurryin' Sure, I've got twenty-odd hungry men to feed in less than half an hour from now; an' if I'm not ready they'll be tearin' down the place, so they will."

Supper was ready on time and Bridget's place escaped the fate that its owner had conjured up, though no one who saw the men eat would have doubted that its cape was narrow. Like a torrent they poured into the dining room when the gong sounded, and like a horde of devouring locusts they swept the table bare.

Stella and Go Ahead were there with the first, but they stayed longer, most of the others making their escape the moment they finished their meal and scattering to affairs that interested them. Several, however, waited outside till Go Ahead came out.

When he did appear, one of these, a clear-eyed, determined-looking ranchman, came up to him, with the other two closely behind. "My name's Brown," he said. "I own a big ranch near here. My friends, Nelson and White—he gestured toward the others—"also own big ranches. We all saw you get Barker's goat a while ago. Course, we don't know just what your game is, an' we're not askin' you to spill it till you get good and ready. We're only tellin' you that we'll back your play against Barker to the limit—and that's the sky. Call on us, any time."

Go Ahead nodded. "That's mighty fine of you," he said, non-committally. "I'll be glad to call on you if I need help. But I hope I won't need it."

"So long."
